BOXING IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Billy Smith Says It Would Do Away With "Killers"

"They ought to teach boxing in the public schools of El Paso and it would do away with pistol toting and knife carrying when the boys become men," said Billy Smith, now a peace officer, once known as "Australasian" Billy Smith, prize fighter.

"Teach boys to fight with their fists and they will not think about stabbing some fellow or shooting him when they get into a fight," he continued.

"Over in my bloody country, they teach the boys how to box and you never hear of men being killed as they are over here.

"Over there they punch a fellow between the eyes with their fists; here, if you wink your eye at a fellow, he takes a shot at you in the crotch.

Teach the boys to box."
